

We are a congregation that has survived for the last 150 years. As our current pastor is soon to retire, we are looking for a pastor who is thought provoking and comforting; someone who will bring new ideas with no preset expectation. We hope the new pastor can help the congregation to ascertain their individual strengths and encourage their participation. Many of our members are content to stick to the 'old ways' and may need a gentle nudge to help expand our role in the community. Our church hosts an independent preschool that contributes to our outreach projects. We are not a large congregation (40+/- members) but have several outreach projects that seem to have a positive impact in the community. As we always say 'All are welcome here' and that seems to have helped a small growth in our congregation. Most have said they felt safe with us.
